“Head” in Spanish

Your head in Spanish is la cabeza.

Maybe you need to usa tu cabeza, or “use your head” and think deeper about something. If you have a headache, then tu tenga dolor de cabeza (“You have a headache” – say it in first person by changing tenga to tengo for “I have”). Along those lines, if you’re under the weather, you may “have a fever and cough” – tener fiebre y tos.

And don’t forget your face, la cara!

Besides la cabeza and la cara, here are the other body parts on your head and face that you should know:

- Eye: el ojo
- Eyelid: el párpado
- Eyelashes: las pestañas
- Eyebrows: las cejas
- Ear: el oido (inside the ear); la oreja (outer ear; the part you see)
- Nose: la nariz
- Mouth: la boca
- Jaw: la mandíbula
- Lips: los labios
- Teeth: los dientes
- Tongue: la lengua
- Throat: la garganta
- Forehead: la frente
- Cheek: la mejilla
- Beard: la barba
- Moustache: el mostacho
- Chin: la barbilla
- Freckles: las pecas
- Hair: el pelo
- Neck: el cuello
- Brain: el cerebro
- Skull: el cráneo
